

Reading Homework for the Week of: February 6, 2012

The story of the week: Fox and Stork

Retold and Illustrated by Gerald McDermott

Directions: These are the reading activities that we will be discussing this week daily in class. While you are doing your nightly reading log you can encourage your child to use these skills as they read.

C omprehension	Author's Purpose This week we will be discussing the author's purpose for writing different types of books. Some author's purposes we will be discussing are: to entertain, to teach a lesson, to inform, and to persuade. Our story this week teaches a lesson about being nice to one another.
A ccuracy	Hopping over words This week we will be reviewing hopping over unknown words and trying to use clues from the sentence to help us figure out the unknown word.
F luency	Popcorn Words (Sight Words) These are words your student needs to know by heart for this week. door, kind, made, who, would
E xpanded Vocabulary	Inflections This week we will be reviewing base words with ends -s, -ed, -ing Ex: likes, rowing, rowed, swims,

11:30 Dismissal On Friday, February 10th.